

Price Revision for Denka Chloroprene

Denka Company Limited would like to inform you that we have decided to implement a price revision for chloroprene rubber marketed under the brand name “Denka Chloroprene,” due to an increase in production costs.

The price increase will be USD 200 or more, or EUR 180 or more, per metric ton, effective May 15, 2026.

We continue to face challenges arising from rising production costs caused by geopolitical tensions. Although we are making our best efforts to minimize the impact, it has become increasingly difficult for us to absorb all of these cost increases on our own.

Therefore, we have decided to revise the selling price in order to ensure a stable supply and maintain business continuity.

Please note that we may need to request further price revisions should our costs continue to rise.

We sincerely appreciate your continued support and understanding regarding this price revision.
